

Soviet Union (1974-5, Art and Health Magazine on Soviet Avant-Gardes and Daily Life as a Psychoanalytic Guide)

Introduction

By Istaban Mesravan

I argue there is not too many issues, but I study this as a bureaucratic report – that it is all because of ecology in Marx – trying to perfect it – everyone is busy committing suicide on boredom issues and calling it a failure – sorry about this, it will be perfect soon.

I. List of Issues from Artistic Perception in CPSU, Hungary and Czech Republic, even in fact Yugoslavia with Slavoj Zizek

“One problem of mine, is the general character of daily life and cars, what I call pollution.”

(to be read as dramatic philosophy and funny pause).

“Another problem, within the public sector companies is unemployment and employment and day dreaming, it can also be just boredom, or failure at succeeding at the job.”

II. Like that How Many Issues for Daily Life

Many such processes, daily life can have then?

“I claim this is the problem with CPSU, it organizes a public sector company process, daily life and perhaps university life with in fact shops around – this is empirical and justified in Sartre’s sense – and in this minimalist music there are many problems which is the abstract point of in fact 20 – 30 problems of a list which I call even a problem of self-medication in a process of some woman I knew which was because of waking up too late in the afternoon and she basically didn't know that it was because of medicine."

The Art –

Now call this pop art (avant-garde, a Sirohi point in 2025)

Pop art means to imagine a editing the problems track to in fact why and how to live track – according to CPSU it is ecology – how does that really affect us.

Are we dancing well to this process, and are we getting the news and why we are busy being utopian if we can.